

A B S T R A C T

The invention relates to an acoustic panel comprising first and second walls having a sound absorber disposed therebetween, wherein the first wall presents, on an inside face facing towards the sound absorber, a plate of viscoelastic material and a backing plate, spacer elements being distributed in at least one dimension and creating an air gap between the absorber and the backing plate.